Want to see a Planetarium show that is unlike any other in the world? Please join us!

How Do We Know?

Light travels at precisely 186,282 miles per second. Stars get their immense power from the fusion of the smallest atoms. Our Earth is 4.54 billion years old, give or take about five million years. The deaths of massive stars can result in a mathematical singularity – a black hole – that is indescribably tiny, but can distort the very fabric of space and time.

Science has given us answers to innumerable questions, answers that we often take for granted. This presentation asks one of the foundational questions of inquiry: how do we know? This ground-breaking presentation gives audiences the chance to create their own unique planetarium show through the planetarium's new Interactive Response System, selecting the astronomical facts and theories they would most like to explore. No two shows are alike!
